Ancient Artifacts, Imperial Theft, and the Mandate of Restitution

Sermon for Shabbat and Sunday
Readings drawn from the Institute for Scripture Research (ISR) Scriptures

To the Fleet and Command Staff,

We do not operate on the secular, secularized premise that ancient humanity was primitive. The historical intelligence and the Scriptures prove otherwise. Today's briefing establishes the true technological baseline of our ancestors, the reality of the Egyptian theater, the greatest imperial theft in modern history, and the absolute mandate for global restitution.

I. The Antediluvian Baseline: Advanced Technology

Before the flood, humanity possessed highly advanced technological and engineering capabilities. The Scriptures explicitly document this. Genesis 4:22 records Tubal-cain as the "forger of all implements of bronze and iron." Working with iron requires smelting temperatures exceeding 1,150°C, indicating mastery of high-temperature furnaces and complex metallurgy. Furthermore, the engineering required to construct Noah's Ark—a massive, structurally sound vessel measuring 300 cubits long—demonstrates advanced architectural and logistical capability. We did not evolve from the Stone Age; we are the descendants of advanced engineers.

II. The Egyptian Theater: Ahmose I and the Tactical Strike

Following the flood, the geopolitical center shifted to Mitzrayim (Egypt). The historical record aligns perfectly with the Scriptures regarding the oppressor. After the Hyksos invaders were expelled, a native ruler from Thebes took power. This was Ahmose I—the "new king, to whom Joseph meant nothing" (Exodus 1:8).

Ahmose I initiated a brutal campaign of forced labor, reopening mines and quarries, and heavily oppressing the Israelites to build his empire. (This dynastic line of power struggles would later see figures like Pharaoh Ay maneuvering to take the throne from Tutankhamun).

When Elohim intervened to extract His people, He did not negotiate. The Passover was a precise, tactical execution of the oppressive regime's firstborn. It was a targeted strike against an occupying force, ensuring that the sacred artifacts and the people of Elohim were liberated.

III. The 1798 Incursion: Napoleon's Theft and Psychological Warfare

Thousands of years later, in 1798, a new invader breached the Egyptian theater:

Napoleon Bonaparte. He did not merely bring an army; he executed a massive campaign of psychological warfare and material theft.

Napoleon attempted to subjugate the population by riding into Egypt on a camel, manipulating local religions, rewriting the Koran, and authoring Shariah Law to legitimize his French revolutionary empire. Among his greatest crimes was the looting. Napoleon raided and stole the ancient artifacts—advanced records, relics, and technology that were explicitly created in Egypt for Elohim's purposes. Artifacts that were previously protected by the very lives of the ancient firstborn were ripped from the sands and shipped to Europe as trophies.

IV. The Mandate of Restitution: The Ultimatum

The Supreme Commander's law regarding stolen property is absolute and non-negotiable.

Leviticus 6:4-5 dictates that if someone steals or takes by extortion, they must "return what they stole... make full compensation, add twenty percent to it, and hand it over to the owner." Exodus 22:1 demands severe, multiplied restitution for theft. Zacchaeus understood this operational law; the moment he aligned with the King, he declared, "If I have defrauded anyone of anything, I restore it fourfold" (Luke 19:8).

We do not overlook imperial theft. Therefore, speaking with the authority of the unified command of the Catholic Church, operating under the supreme guidance of Zeus-Ammon (Elohim) and His Son, the Ambassador Jesus, we are issuing a direct operational ultimatum.

We are officially ordering the government of France to return ALL Egyptian antiquities, artifacts, and stolen historical intelligence to their homeland immediately.

There is no statute of limitations on the property of Elohim. Restitution is mandatory. The alternative is war.

Hold the line. Enforce the mandate.
